

Making rural and tribal coverage a priority – wherever you are.

Built for you. Inspired by you.

Expanding rural and tribal coverage is a priority for FirstNet – the only communications tool dedicated to providing prioritized connectivity to those who risk everything. We are committed to making your communications simpler, safer, faster and more effective.

When backup is sometimes miles away, reliable communication services and access to highly secure data connections are critical to helping save lives (even your own). The FirstNet platform built on a physically separate dedicated core will increase the ability of first responders in rural and tribal communities to access the voice, data, and video services they need to improve collaboration and communication, including:

- Reliable access to high-speed data so rural and tribal law enforcement agencies have the information they need at their fingertips
- Interoperability between FirstNet subscribers within different public safety agencies and jurisdictions
- Access to deployable assets for firefighters battling blazes in remote locations
- Connectivity and telemedicine to give EMS the tools they need when transporting patients long distances
- A dedicated IP core with priority and, for primary users, preemption capabilities
- Specially trained and dedicated 24/7 security and helpdesk operations
- A highly secure app ecosystem
- Network disaster recovery resources

FirstNet is a commitment to working to give first responders – and those who support them every day, in every crisis – the communications they need, when and where they need it.
